4TH SUNDAY IN ADVENT PASTOR'S CORNER DEC.21, 2025.

We are at the end of Advent season and as we make our final preparations for Christmas, we may wonder how we should spend these last three days preparing our hearts. We are at the threshold of Christmas. In three days from now, we will be celebrating the memory of that great event. The incarnation, which we're about to celebrate in two days' time – the birth of a baby who is fully human yet fully divine – crystallizes this paradox of the ordinary and the extraordinary-I will not go into the paradox, but one of the paradoxes in Christianity deals with the humanity and divinity of our Lord Jesus Christ. Thus, throughout Advent, we have heard of God's promise to send a Liberator- a Savior into the world today; we catch a glimpse of how that is to be accomplished and to some extent, we can associate with the greatest joy of the Blessed Virgin Mary who awaited the coming of the baby-Jesus into the world. Anticipation and preparedness are the watch words for this Sunday of Advent.

When we have to look at the history of humanity, people haven't changed, human beings since the time of Ahaz are still like their patron saint-doubting Thomas are still doubting. They are always pragmatic and looking for signs, but all these signs come from and point to one great sign. Right in the middle of history, in space and in time, a woman conceived and gave a birth. Her son was no ordinary child, but was call "Immanuel"- God-is -with-us. Before the birth of Jesus, all the signs pointed forwards; since his birth, many of them pointed backwards. Though the birth of Jesus is in the past, his presence is in our midst; the sign has not passed; it is before us.

When we look for a sign, we are drawn to this sign. There is no other to compare. The sign of the Christ-born for us is not merely one which announces something or points to something; it is much more. The sign of the child Jesus born for us to interpret reality: our own lives, helps us make sense of our world. When we encounter suffering, we look to Christ, who suffered and died out of love for us. When we are confused or anxious, he offers us consolation and peace. When we are weighed down by cares of life or guilty and shame, he shares our burden. When we face our own death, or the death of a loved one, he is our assurance of everlasting life. So, the sign given once in Bethlehem is relevant to all places and all times.

Therefore, as we prepare during these few days in Advent, let us reflect first the sign give to us, our families, relatives and friends, those around us we meet daily, the poor, the suffering, the refugees and migrants, the homeless who are suffering in this cold weather and your joys and woes. Let us pray for peace all over the world and reflect and make the child Jesus the center of your meditation. Let us clear way the clutter in our minds and hearts and make room for the Messiah and say to Him "Maranatha- Come Lord Jesus" do not delay.

POPE FRANCIS ON THE 4TH SUNDAY OF ADVENT YEAR A

Saint Peter's Square

4th Sunday of Advent Year A, 18 December 2022

Dear brothers and sisters, buongiorno!

Today, the fourth and final Sunday of Advent, the liturgy presents the figure of Saint Joseph to us (cf. Mt 1:18-24). He is a just man who is about to get married. We can imagine what his dreams for the future are – a beautiful family, with an affectionate wife and many wonderful children, and a dignified job – simple and good dreams, the dreams of simple and good people. But all of a sudden, these dreams come up against a disconcerting discovery. Mary, his betrothed, is expecting a child, and the child is not his! What would Joseph have felt? Shock, pain, confusion, perhaps even irritation and disappointment.... But... He experienced his world was falling apart all around him! And what was he supposed to do?

The Law gives him two options. The first is to accuse Mary and make her pay the price for her alleged infidelity. The second is to secretly annul their engagement without exposing Mary to scandal and to harsh consequences, taking upon himself, however, the burden of shame. So, Joseph chooses this second option, which is the way of mercy. And behold, at the height of his crisis, right when he is thinking and evaluating all this, God gives him a new light in his heart – he declares to him in a dream that Mary's motherhood did not come about because of a betrayal, but was the work of the Holy Spirit, and the baby to be born would be the Savior (cf. vv. 20-21), and Mary would be the Mother of the Messiah, and he would be His guardian. On waking up, Joseph understands that the greatest dream of every devout Israelite – to be the father of the Messiah – was being fulfilled for him in a completely unexpected way.

To accomplish this, in fact, it was not enough to belong to David's lineage and to be a faithful observer of the law, but he would need to entrust himself above and beyond all else to God, welcome Mary and her Son in a completely different way than was expected, differently than had ever been done. In other words, Joseph would have to renounce all reassuring certainties, his perfect plans, his legitimate expectations, and open himself to a future that was completely to be discovered. And before God, who disrupts his plans and asks that he trust Him, Joseph says "yes". Joseph's courage is heroic and is exercised in silence – his courage is to trust, he welcomes, he is willing, he asks for no further guarantees.

Brothers and sisters, what does Joseph say to us today? We too have our dreams, and perhaps we think of them more, we talk about them together at Christmas. Perhaps we lament over some dreams that have been shattered and we see that our best expectations often need to be put together with unexpected, disconcerting situations. And when this happens, Joseph shows us the way. We do not need to give in to negative feelings, like anger or isolation – this is the wrong way! Instead, we need to attentively welcome surprises, the surprises in life, even crises. When we find ourselves in crisis, we should not make decisions quickly or instinctively, but let them pass through the sieve, like Joseph did who "considered everything" (cf. v. 20), and base ourselves on the underlying certainty of God's mercy. When someone experiences a crisis without giving in to isolation, anger, and fear, but keeps the door open for God, He can intervene. He is an expert in transforming crises into dreams – yes, God opens crises into new horizons we never would have imagined before, perhaps not as we would expect, but in the way He knows how. And these, brothers and sisters, are God's horizons – surprising – but infinitely more grand and beautiful than ours! May the Virgin Mary help us live open to God's surprises.
